

Anthony Waterer Spirea

A close-up photograph of an Anthony Waterer Spirea plant. The image shows several clusters of bright pink, carmine-colored flowers in full bloom, interspersed with lush green leaves. Some of the leaves are still in their protective brownish-red sheaths, indicating new growth. The background is a soft-focus green, suggesting a garden setting.

- New Leaves are Brownish-Red that turn Green
- Flowers in Late May and Early June
- Flowers are Carmine-Pink
- GROWTH: 3 FT. TALL AND 4 FT. WIDE